Now Is The Time For You To Grow Your Own Fruit

THE one thing most in the minds of the people of the United States as well as the balance of this "old world" today is the high cost of living. There is a famine in parts of Europe, people are dying for want of food. Almost every day we hear the call "send us more food, we are starving." America has heeded this call and will keep on heeding it as humanity demands we should, but are we doing our whole duty, are we growing all it is possible for us to grow? I know we farmers are "up against it," labor is scarce, fertilizer and farming implements are high as is most everything else that we have to buy, but with all of this to contend with I believe this is the time for us to plant a little more fruit if we can possibly cultivate and harvest it. All sorts of fruits are selling for the highest prices ever known, and the prospect is that it will remain high for several years. If you are now growing fruit for your own family use why not grow a little extra and have some to sell your neighbor who will be glad to get it and pay you well for it? If you have been depending on buying it from your groceryman or fruitman why not grow it yourself? It only takes a small plot of ground to grow enough for a large family, and what a difference when you can pick the fruit right fresh from your own vines in the cool of the morning with all their freshness and sweetness and a plenty of them. You, who have never grown your own strawberries and the other small fruits cannot begin to realize the pleasure one gets from growing them in one's own garden. As a money-making crop I do not know of anything that will compare with strawberries and the other small fruits; they soon come in bearing, and with the great demand for the preserved fruits which is used for flavoring ice cream and soft drinks, and in a good many other ways it seems that it will be almost impossible to grow enough to supply this demand. If you do not know just what varieties to plant I will be glad to assist you in making a selection best suited to your needs and conditions.

STRAWBERRY PLANTS

CHESAPEAKE. Undoubtedly the most popular medium late berry grown today and deservedly so. The berries are perfect in shape, extra large, very firm and of unequalled quality. This is the medium late berry for you for your own table or for market use.

CAMPBELL'S EARLY. One leading grower says it comes in ahead of them all. A large plant with healthy foliage, which protects the great crop of large, beautiful, rich red berries. Very firm, large with no knotty, ill-shaped berries; ripens perfectly all over.

DR. BURRILL. A good medium early, large and beautifully formed berry; deep, glossy red, meat solid and rich. Fine for canning and a good shipper.

FORD. A perfect flowering variety ripening about the same time as Chesapeake. Very productive, large and attractive. Very popular where it has been fruited.

GANDY. One of the old favorites and as a money-maker for the late market hard to beat, always bringing the top prices. Large, dark crimson berries of excellent quality and good keeping qualities.

HOWARD No. 17. This is a new midseason berry that will please you. A good grower producing extra fancy berries of good quality, large and a good keeper. Very prolific. The Connecticut Agricultural College says it is the best of them all.

JOE JOHNSON (BIG JOE). One of the best midseason berries in my list. Ripens a little ahead of Chesapeake. Large in size, almost perfect in shape, very solid, bright red in color and a heavy bearer. A bed of Joe Johnson in fruit is about as pretty a sight as one often sees and it is a money-maker for both local and distant markets.

KELLOGG'S PREMIER. As a medium early berry this is pronounced by all who have seen it in fruit the best of them all. A wonder in productiveness, mammoth in size, beautifully formed, rich and red through and through, delicious in flavor and a splendid shipper. Every berry a show berry. If you would grow strawberries that will sell at your own price, no matter how many other berries are on the market, the Premier is the variety for you to choose.

KLONDYKE. Berries uniform in shape and size, early, dark red, mild and delicious, very handsome. This berry has probably made more money for the Southern grower than all other varieties put together.

McALPINE. A fancy midseason to late berry, a heavy fruiter and I never saw more perfect berries. See colored illustration above. Excellent quality and brings top prices on the markets.

Additional Varieties. Bederwood, Champion K, Early Ozark, Lady Thompson, Messenger, Missionary, Michael's Early, Success, Big Valley, Corsican, Glen Mary, Magic Gem, New York, Parsons' Beauty, Pittsville, Ryckman, Sharpless Senator Dunlap, Tennessee Prolific, Wm. Belt, Warfield, Aroma, Kellogg's Prize, Kellogg's Big Late, Lupton, Sample.
